

IEEE Key Messaging and Talking Points

Use this resource when preparing for media interviews, IEEE conferences or industry trade shows where you may be asked to discuss IEEE.

IEEE Key Messaging and Talking Points

- IEEE is the world's largest technical professional organization advancing technology for the benefit of humanity
- IEEE is a not-for-profit organization of engineers and technologists from around the world
- IEEE members collaborate and shape the future of technology
- IEEE attracts the best and the brightest who help solve the world's most pressing problems and build pride and prestige in the professions.
- IEEE is the “voice” of the profession, demonstrating global technology leadership, and providing authoritative, unbiased, cutting-edge information from space exploration to biomedical engineering.
- Our more than 422,000 members actively shape the future of technology through
 - Conducting cutting-edge research
 - Publishing thought-provoking papers
 - Creating technical standards that improve that facilitate global cooperation across industries and geographies
 - Attending and presenting at industry-leading conferences
- They work in emerging technology areas including:
 - Artificial intelligence
 - Autonomous vehicles
 - Cybersecurity
 - Robotics
 - Future of medical science ... and more
- IEEE has a long and esteemed history. Past members of IEEE include Thomas Edison and Alexander Graham Bell

IEEE By the Numbers

- For the most current statistics on IEEE membership, conferences, branches, chapters, etc., visit the IEEE at a Glance page.